February 19, 2015 Exit Interview with Lori Kirbach

About Your Job:

- Only jobs she had with H. D. Smith was Compliance Coordinator. Consists of CSOMP monitoring (most of her time), ARCOS reporting, product recalls and liaison for licensing (to SLS).
- 2. This is the job she thought she would be doing.
- 3. She did this kind of work before (product recalls, compliance) but in a different field.
- 4. She thought she was performing well in her job.
- 5. She did not progress in her job. There is nowhere to go, no career progression or path.
- 6. What she likes most about the job is the people, most of them. She is truly humbled by the number of emails and calls from people about how sad they are that she is leaving.
- 7. What she likes least about the job is the pay and this is part of the reason for her leaving.
- 8. She has audit skills and SOP writing experience that could have been utilized. She likes to write SOPs and would have enjoyed doing that here at H. D. Smith.
- 9. Additional comments: She struggled without a boss and did not feel supported during that time. She felt like every time she went to Tom to ask a question, she was bothering him and that he often failed to give recognition when it was warranted. Example: California Board of Pharmacy said "how can you guys do such a good job with such a small staff" and Tom did not pass that praise on to anyone. Another example, Debbie often sends articles/notes about former customers who get punished; ones that we have identified as those we should not do business with or helped in the criminal investigation and Tom never gives praise for that good work.

SAP and ARCOS are not working efficiently together and there is a lot of manual manipulation that must be done. Kannan asked been asked to fix it but he says he doesn't have the time to do it. Tom does not push the issue and its a risk for us.

The other main reason behind her leaving is that she feels the company is and has been breaking the law for some time. She doesn't understand why this is going on and being tolerated. CSOMP has not been working correctly since OPUS Go Live and no one will listen to them when they bring this up. Compliance is releasing orders that they should not be releasing. She told Tom and nothing was done. He will say no one told him. She did not ever consider notifying Internal Audit or making a complaint through the ethics hotline. She says DEA is about two years behind in looking at CSOMP data and its only a matter of time before they catch up to us and questions are asked.

All the divisions treat Compliance great except New England and that is partly due to Christian not being supportive of what they do. Kentucky used to be like that but they are better now after having gone through their issues with the DEA.

There is a management person (Director or higher) who is using the H. D. Smith Foundation to fund his/her child's private school tuition. This person makes a donation to the foundation in the name of the school/church, and then the money the foundation pays to the church is used for the child's tuition. She knows this because someone told her but she would not reveal who told her or who the manager is.

She reported that someone was writing a check to Jeans Day for a large dollar amount (i.e. $50) and taking $45 out in cash. She felt this was dishonest because the person could claim a $50 charitable donation on his/her taxes. She wouldn't say who this was and was not sure this was still happening.

Tom has often said not to put certain issues (such as the CSOMP issue) in email so in the event the company is ever sued and the email is produced, Dale and Chris can deny any knowledge. She got her "ass chewed" out once by Tom for putting something in email that he thought she shouldn't have.

The workload was crazy, for example, she was inundated with calls from the sales reps telling her that Compliance has had the data for 2 months or more and no answer; they just can't keep up with it all.

Greg McCoy got a bum deal. He wintered in Florida. We were told to watch our travel or no travel and he was getting her everything she needed. He was reviewing reports from Florida and doing everything he was supposed to be except site visits because we were told not to travel.

The Compliance Managers are so busy they don't have time to write their reports. There should be a rule that reports must be written within 2 weeks of the site visit.

Bill Stivers left because he was burnt out. She believes there was no malicious intent in the timing of Bill submitting his resignation; he waited until Tracey came on board as a courtesy, looking out for an already overworked department.

The department never gets any accolades. She is not leaving because of the workload, only the pay and the CSOMP issue. This might sound greedy or that she is motivated by money but its just reality.

The "higher ups" don't know what Compliance does. Our push lately has been on trying to rehabilitate customers rather than just close the account and this takes time. Kevin has an example of where doing this resulted in $28 million saved. There are 400 open cases.

We ran the department for over a year between George leaving and Tracey coming, with no recognition.

February 19, 2015 Exit Interview with Lori Kirbach

There is no career path in Compliance.

Tom is a micro manager and always negative. He never offers any positive comments, he only points out what you did wrong. If he gave you ten things to do and you did 9 correctly, he would only focus on the one wrong thing. When he does performance reviews, you never get more than a 2. To him, a 3 is like a 5.

Tracey is obsessed with the DEA and that is all she wants to do. She wants to be the point of contact for all matters. She wants to be the "big dog". She has told the investigators that they can no longer talk to their law enforcement contacts as its too risky. Tracey is disorganized, is not a good fit and does not have the security background that we need. She does not answer her emails or phone calls when she travels. Tracey is trying to understand what we do.

About Your Salary and Benefits:

- 1. Nothing
- 2. There should be a 401k match. Tracey told her she might not have taken the job if she had really understood about how our profit sharing works. Corporate Compliance should get paid more, there is a big discrepancy between what PJ/Kyle/Lori make and what the Regional Compliance Managers make, even considering their law enforcement background. Corporate Compliance basically does what they do except for the site visits. She took a pay cut to come here and thought the 15% profit sharing would make up for that but it has not. She thought her salary progression would be better.
- 3. Kyle would make a great investigator! Each division should have its own Regional Compliance Manager. The company needs to do more education on drug diversion for the customers. There needs to be more focus on the day to day work we do.
- 4. She would love to stay if the company paid her more and quit breaking the law. She loves the work and the people.
